Presence Of Nazi Troops Fails To Halt Witting In Voicing U. S. Favor

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Diplomatic advices reaching Washington today indicate a growing desire on the part of Finland to remain on friendly terms with the United States, and to avoid involvement in any future fighting which may take place in Scandinavia between German and allied forces.

Despite the presence of several divisions of German troops in Finland, the Finnish foreign minister, Rolf Witting, has gone so far as to declare publicly that his country wishes to avoid any trouble with the United States.

A statement to this effect was made by Witting in an interview with a correspondent of the Swedish newspaper "Social Demokraten," word of which has just reached Washington.

Friendship Stressed
Emphasizing Finland's desire to remain on friendly terms with America, Witting said:
"I hope leaders of the American government are fully aware of the fact that the Finnish people would not like to see any breach with the United States."

Witting also reiterated that Finland's war aims are limited solely to safeguarding its independence and "internal freedom."

With the lifting of the German siege of Leningrad and renewed speculation concerning the possibility of an allied move in Norway, the Finns are believed to be deeply concerned lest they be dragged into the main conflict between the Axis and the United States.

Defensive War

Finnish spokesmen in Washington insist that Finland is merely waging a defensive war against Russia, and has no desire to become involved in the wider aspects of the world conflict.

In this connection, Finnish spokesmen point out that Finland never permitted the Germans to use their territory as a base of operations for attacking Leningrad. The view also prevails in some circles that the Finnish people would withdraw from the war rather than engage in resistance to any Anglo-American move of liberation in Scandinavia.

Damage to Tripoli's Harbor, Adjacent Areas Almost Unbelievable

WITH THE BRITISH EIGHTH ARMY IN TRIPOLI, Jan. 24—(Delayed)—Damage to Tripoli's harbor and adjacent areas is almost unbelievable. American and allied bombers that pounded the Libyan port in the weeks before the fall of the city at dawn Saturday did their job well.

The hulks or superstructures of a dozen vessels were counted in the blue waters of the harbor. The great Spanish mole has been pounded almost out of existence.

The wharves, warehouses and loading-sheds on the piers look as though a great cyclone had passed over the area and then come back again to do a thorough job.

Near the shore was the skeleton of a big coal storage bin, which once resembled one of our grain elevators. The shell hung crazily, apparently supported by sheer faith, as our bombs had wrecked it completely.

Food Pentiful
Nevertheless food appears plentiful despite the fact the harbor is a shambles. This was a Godsend to men who have been living for weeks on desert rations of bully-beef and hardtack.

The vanguards of Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery's Eighth Army entered the heart of the Libyan stronghold at dawn Saturday—while the desert was still wet with dew. And today, scarcely 24 hours later, life goes on almost as though the British had always been the masters of Tripoli.

Civilian life has returned almost to normal. The streets are still patrolled by soldiers—but they are khaki-clad Tommies instead of Italians.

16,000 Jews Freed
One of the first acts of British military authorities was to rescind the axis anti-semitic regulations and free some 16,000 Jews who had been penned up in a ghetto.

Gen. Montgomery gave orders that the civilian population be told to carry on as usual, without fear or undue restrictions.

"Tell the civilians we want them to carry on just as they always have," said the scrappy little British commander. "We are not fighting civil populations. We are fighting the German and Italian armies."

Tripoli was formally surrendered to the victorious allied army by Commandatore San Marco, Lieut. Governor of Libya, in the presence of the Italian lord mayor and tacit provost marshal.

The city itself shows only slight damage, except along the waterfront—a tribute to the allied policy of concentrating on military objectives and sparing civilian property in air raids.

Harbor Blocked
Two large ships were athwart the harbor entrance, but it was not determined whether they were victims of bombers or were deliberately sunk by the axis to block immediate use of the port by allied shipping.

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 26—Screen Singer Judy Garland and her composer-husband Dave Rose today sang that familiar Hollywood blues tune, "It's All Over Now."

Their matrimonial troubles were climaxed when the young actress moved out of their large home and took a small apartment alone.

Issuing a joint statement, the couple said:
"We have parted and we both have agreed that a matrimonial vacation now is the only way to settle our mutual differences."

One of filmdom's biggest money makers, Miss Garland eloped with Rose to Las Vegas, Nev., July 28, 1941. Rose, now a corporal in the army, previously had been married to Actress Martha Raye.

JEFFERS TURNS VERBAL GUNS ON ARMY AND NAVY

Too Many Experts, Loafers Impeding Production, Rubber Czar Says

TUSSLE BECOMES FIGHT

Less Interference From Armed Forces Demanded By Director

BULLETIN
WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—The house naval affairs committee today decided to conduct an investigation into charges by Rubber Administrator William Jeffers that army and navy experts, and "the loafers, and so called expeditors" are retarding the synthetic rubber program.

Chairman Vinson (D) Ga., announced he would appoint a subcommittee to confer with the house military affairs committee and proposed that they join in examining the entire situation as it affects both branches of the armed services.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—The quiet, behind-the-scenes tussle between the armed forces and Rubber Director William Jeffers for priorities in the nation's war effort blossomed into a public free-for-all today as Jeffers bitterly assailed "too many army and navy experts and loafers" as impeding production.

The battle started several weeks ago when Jeffers demanded that 65 to 70 percent of his giant synthetic rubber program be given a "green light" on vital component parts, such as valves, heat exchangers and other instruments. He asserted that a collapse of transportation was the only alternative.

Army and navy representatives opposed Jeffers' demands, contending that to give rubber first claim to these materials would slow down the high octane gasoline, escort vessels, airplanes, and chemical warfare programs which also compete for the limited supply of such parts.

Charges Hurdled

In a speech at Baltimore, however, the tough, outspoken Union Pacific railroad charged:
"We can do all these things if we get production to the point it ought to be, if we get less interference in the plants. There are too many experts in these plants, army and navy men. One day it's the navy and the next the army. It's a battle between how many stars and how many bars."

The Office of War Information, considerably irked at Jeffers' speech, promptly denied responsibility for clearing it and said that the agency had no prior knowledge that he was to deliver such an address.

Expeditors Blamed

Jeffers told the council of state governments that the "so-called expeditors" were preventing smooth operation of the war production program. If the army and navy experts "and the loafers" are kept out of the plants, "we'll get the production, keep our country on rubber and keep our economy," Jeffers said.

"Let's bring the boys back to a country that's functioning and not (Continued on Page Two)

GERMAN SUBS EXPECTED BACK ON EAST COAST

MONTREAL, Que., Jan. 26—German U-boats can be expected to resume their attacks this Spring off the eastern coast of Canada and in the St. Lawrence river, Vice-Admiral Percy W. Nelles, warned today. Admiral Nelles, chief of the Canadian naval staff said the gravity of the submarine menace was increasing and added "the secret of destroy U-boats is more escort vessels closely co-operating with more aircraft."

SEEK MAN IN LOWER 13 MYSTERY

A dark-complexioned man, who apparently vanished from a San Francisco-bound train about the time Mrs. Martha Virginia Brinson James, 21, was mysteriously slashed to death as she lay in her lower berth, No. 13, aboard the train, is being sought by police.

The mysterious passenger was sought after a passenger and a member of the train crew gave evidence of having seen such a man aboard the train prior to the killing of Mrs. James, bride of a naval ensign.

Plot in Train Killing Thickens with Arrest Of Zoot-Suit Negro

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26—The plot in the "mystery of lower 13" train killing thickened today as a zoot-suit Negro cook formally was booked on murder suspicion and a number of "mystery" witnesses added bizarre testimony regarding the knife-slaying of Mrs. Martha James, 21, navy wife.

Robert Folkes, 20, second cook on the death train, was removed from the Southern Pacific Limited by Los Angeles police who acted for Oregon authorities. Mrs. James—four-month bride of Ensign Richard F. James—was slain in her berth Friday night as the train sped through Oregon.

MacARTHUR 63 YEARS OLD; GOES AHEAD WITH WAR

UNITED NATIONS HEADQUARTERS IN AUSTRALIA, Jan. 26—Gen. Douglas MacArthur was 63 years old today, but there were no formal celebrations to mark the anniversary. It was just another day of hard work at United Nations headquarters.

By a remarkable coincidence today was also the birthday anniversary of Australia. It was 153 years ago today that the first British settlers reached the island continent and ran up the flag of England at a point where the city of Sydney now stands.

Australia's "Foundation Day" is usually celebrated on a lavish scale. Widespread observance was scheduled but with the obvious restrictions imposed on a nation at war.

Gen. MacArthur arrived at his office early and plunged into the work of cleaning up the details of the Papuan campaign in New Guinea. He returned to Australia only recently from the New Guinea front where he went into the field and took personal command in the final phases of the fighting to drive the Japanese invasion forces from the island.

NO TRACE OF PLANE

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 26—Despite a continuing search, no trace had been found today of a huge navy transport which disappeared last Thursday morning after arriving over San Francisco on a flight from Honolulu.

Nineteen persons were aboard the missing plane including Rear Admiral Robert L. English, commander of U. S. submarine forces in the Pacific.

Farm Labor Subject of Conference

Trained Workers May Be Made Available By FSA Project

Pickaway county's farm labor problem was canvassed from several angles Monday afternoon when members of the U. S. Department of Agriculture War Board met at the call of Cornell Copeland, Farm Security administration chief.

At the meeting were John G. Boggs, AAA and War Board chairman; N. T. Weldon, of the U. S. Employment Service office; F. K. Blair, county extension agent; H. Newell Stevenson and Lawrence Liston, members of the War Board, and Mr. Copeland, who is also a War Board affiliate.

Difficulty in obtaining suitable labor was pointed out by Mr. Copeland, who declared that under the project undertaken by Ohio State university and Rio Grande college in conjunction with the U. S. Department of Education and the Farm Security office, trained workers from submarginal land and other states may be made available. These farmers are chosen carefully by FSA representatives, given necessary schooling at the two Ohio education centers, and assigned to farm areas where requests for their services have been received.

Farm Security office is responsible for selection and transfer of the man to the training center. U. S. Employment Service is charged with assigning the men where they may be best fitted.

Most important angle stressed concerning alleviation of the problem was the need for farmers to file requests for help with the Employment Service office in the courthouse. Mr. Weldon keeps a list of all requests for aid, and his duty will be to assign the trained farmers to Pickaway county farm operators who have filed requests for them.

At present the Employment Service has 206 requests for corn huskers, but none is available. Farm officials believe that about one-third of the county's corn crop has not yet been husked, and that (Continued on Page Two)

FEAR PROMPTED MURDER, TWO WOMEN CLAIM

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 26—Two women today faced murder charges as the result of the fatal shooting of Victor Caproni, 29, steelworker, as he lay asleep in a Cincinnati hospital, recovering from a bullet wound suffered in an earlier quarrel with his wife, resulting from a domestic triangle.

Murder charges were filed against his wife, Eleanor, 26, mother of four children, and a 26-year-old divorcee, who gave the name of Mrs. Pearl Leonard. Mrs. Leonard had lived with the Capronis in suburban Blue Ash.

According to police, Mrs. Leonard admitted shooting Caproni and said she and Mrs. Caproni planned the slaying in self defense. Mrs. Leonard said that Caproni had threatened to "kill the whole bunch of you" after being wounded by his wife during a violent quarrel.

Mrs. Caproni, free on $2,000 bond on a charge of shooting with intent to kill in connection with the earlier shooting, drove to the hospital with Mrs. Leonard, police said. Mrs. Leonard entered Caproni's room and found him asleep. She pulled the trigger twice on the gun she carried, but the safety catch was on. Returning to the corridor, she released the safety and reentering the room shot Caproni in the temple, according to her statement to police. Then returning to Mrs. Caproni in the car they drove two blocks to a fire station and surrendered to Marshal William Reeder.

Mrs. Caproni told police, they said, that she had stayed with her husband, whom she had married because of threats when she was 16, because she had no other place to go. She said she occupied a room separate from the quarters occupied by Caproni and Mrs. Leonard.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Indicating the arrival of Japanese aerial reinforcements in the Solomons, the navy announced today that a large force of enemy dive and twin-engine bombers and fighters, which were headed for Guadalcanal, were routed in a sky battle by U. This was the first powerful Japanese plane force reported in operation in the southern Solomons since early November. Only lone Nipponese bombers have been raiding American positions in recent weeks.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson today told a senate agriculture subcommittee that he does not know whether the nation can equip, arm and transport an army of 8,000,000 men and at the same time raise all the food and provide all the equipment needed both for the United States and her allies.

He refused, however, to dispute the judgment of military chiefs in their plans for 10,000,000 men in the armed services.

Finns will go to almost any lengths to avoid involvement with the United States or any participation with the axis in other than a defensive war of Finland's borders.

DON'T LOOK LIKE MEN, WOMEN IN SLACKS WARNED

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—The Chicago city council today fell in step with the modern trend in feminine attire as exemplified in the wearing of slacks, overalls and such.

An ordinance which forbade women to wear men's clothes was amended to read that it's okay so long as they still manage to look like women.
Formerly a fine of $20 to $100 was authorized for anyone wearing clothing of the opposite sex. The amendment added the words "with intent to conceal his or her sex."

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—Indicating the arrival of Japanese aerial reinforcements in the Solomons, the navy announced today that a large force of enemy dive and twin-engined bombers and fighters, which were headed for Guadalcanal, were routed in a sky battle by U. S. planes. Four Japanese zeros were shot down. No U. S. planes were lost.

This was the first powerful Japanese plane force reported in operation in the southern Solomons since early November. Only lone Japanese bombers have been raiding American positions in recent weeks.

The navy also made public details of the American capture of the Japanese Guadalcanal headquarters at Kokumbona, seven miles west of the U. S. airfield on that island.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26—War Production Board Chairman Donald M. Nelson today told a senate agriculture subcommittee that he does not know whether the nation can equip, arm and transport an army of 8,000,000 men and at the same time raise all the food and provide all the equipment needed both for the United States and her allies.

He refused, however, to dispute the judgment of military chiefs in their plans for 10,000,000 men in the armed services.

Finns will go to almost any lengths to avoid involvement with the United States or any participation with the axis in other than a defensive war of Finland's borders.

British, French and American armies in Tunisia stabbed at axis positions as the defeated Afrika Korps continued its headlong flight from Libya under a rain of bombs from allied aircraft with the British Eighth Army close on its heels.

DON'T LOOK LIKE MEN, WOMEN IN SLACKS WARNED

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—The Chicago city council today fell in step with the modern trend in feminine attire as exemplified in the wearing of slacks, overalls and such.

An ordinance which forbade women to wear men's clothes was amended to read that it's okay so long as they still manage to look like women.

Formerly a fine of $20 to $100 was authorized for anyone wearing clothing of the opposite sex. The amendment added the words "with intent to conceal his or her sex."

driven from the town and across the Don with a loss of 11,000 prisoners.

(Editor's note: The British radio, reported that Russian troops from the central Caucasus have pushed up to the main highway leading to Rostov and made a junction with other Soviet forces advancing down the line from Salsk. The natural meeting place for these two forces, it was pointed out, would be the great strategic junction of Tikhoretsk, but the broadcast merely mentioned continued progress in this direction. Another British broadcast said that Russian bombers are pounding German columns streaming westward toward Kursk from the front south of Voronezh.)

Cap Base Blasted

In the southwest Pacific and in Burma allied forces blasted Japanese bases, continuing the heavy blows that appear to have taken much of the starch out of the enemy's offensive plans.

The Vichy radio, announced that a state of siege had been declared in Marseilles to facilitate evacuation of 40,000 residents of the harbor area. Although Vichy declared the evacuation had been completed Monday afternoon with "calm and discipline" its later announcements belied this claim. It was admitted that 6,000 persons had been arrested.

Zurich dispatches to London said French civilians had resisted the efforts of French police and German troops to move them out of the port district, and after fighting in the streets, had barricaded themselves in residences and buildings and fought off the Nazis and the Vichy police.

The evacuation order was issued by Vichy on German demands, it was reported, so that the port area can be fortified against possible allied invasion attempts.

Nazis Jittery

This open rebellion followed reports that the Nazis were taking similar action in northern Norway where civilians were being cleared from coastal points which are being fortified in defense against expected allied thrusts.

Advance units of the British Eighth Army were reported officially to have occupied Zausa, 20 miles beyond Tripoli, but the Algerians radio said three columns of the British army had driven into Tunisia in pursuit of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's beaten Afrika Korps.

In central Tunisia American units, challenged by the Germans to "come out and fight," struck the enemy in a sudden sortie which netted 80 prisoners. The axis drive southwest of Pont du Fahs has been halted and thrown back. The Paris radio said the axis forces were expecting an American offensive from the vicinity of Tebessa towards the port of Gabes in an effort to cut off Rommel's retreat.

Reds Move Ahead

Spurred on by Commander-in-Chief Joseph Stalin's demands for still more victories to drive the enemy from Russian territory, Red army forces surged ahead in the drives on Kharkov and Rostov as the Germans were driven from the Voronezh area. Stalin congratulated his armies and thanked them for their victories, particularly at Stalingrad, but called for continued pressure on the enemy, and the Soviet forces complied.

In bloody battles the axis forces were driven back on the approaches to Kharkov, Ukraine industrial center, and Rostov, gateway to the Caucasus. Russians driving down the Stalingrad-Krasnodar rail line, were within 37 miles of Tikhoretsk, main rail center in the Caucasus.

Allied bombers ranged over the New Guinea area, and scored two direct hits on Japanese supply vessels in Rabaul harbor. One ship exploded and the other's hull was crashed in.

In Burma RAF bombers again raided the enemy base at Shwebo, 45 miles north of Mandalay, and American Hudson bombers raided the Arakan coast of northwest Burma. An Indian naval vessel rammed a Japanese transport in the Mayu river, and 50 enemy troops were killed or drowned.

The women, whose names were not divulged by police, told how a waiter had given them two "complimentary" turkey sandwiches in their berth opposite lady lower 13, shortly before pretty Mrs. James toppled into the aisle, her throat slashed.

Later, one of the women went to the washroom they testified, and the remaining woman was approached by a man who whispered into the berth:

"Are you going to kiss me good-bye, sweetheart? I'm getting off pretty soon."

The man attempted to enter the berth, the woman was quoted as saying by police. She fought him off and saw that he was a Negro. The assailant fled, although the woman did not give an alarm.

Folkes said that he remembered making six turkey sandwiches in the dining car at a "private party" and that only four of them were eaten there.

Mrs. James' husband was riding a train ahead of his wife, the couple having been separated by schedules.

Police also were questioning Elmer White, Negro waiter, and N. L. Shaw, porter on the death car. Both are from Los Angeles.

NEW TYPE U. S. DIVE BOMBER SPEEDIEST YET

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Production of a new type dive bomber embodied with greater speed, range and striking power than any similar plane now being used in the war was disclosed today by G. W. Vaughn, president of the Curtiss Wright corporation.

Designated the Curtiss A-25, Vaughn said that the first of the new type planes has already been delivered to the U. S. army air forces by the Missouri plant of the corporation. The new dive bomber is an army version of the already famed Curtiss Helldiver, now being produced for the U. S. navy.

All details of its speed, armament, cruising range and bomb-carrying capacity are military secrets.

COURT IGNORES SIGNS; AWARDS HEAVY DAMAGES

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—The appellate court today took the practical view that few persons pay any attention to warning signs, anyway.

With that observation, the court reversed a ruling of the Cook county superior court which had set aside an award of $28,600 damages to Mary Ann Schwick-rath, 16, against the Rock Island lines. Thus she will get the award, barring further litigation.

The girl was injured when thrown from the platform of a suburban train rounding a curve. Signs warned passengers to remain in their seats until the train stopped, but the court said in effect:

"It long has been a general practice among passengers to ignore warning signs."

JEFFERS TURNS VERBAL GUNS ON ARMY AND NAVY

Too Many Experts, Loafers Impeding Production, Rubber Czar Says

one as flat as a flounder," he said. "We can bring production up to adequate levels to permit fulfillment of all the military needs and rubber plants as well."

"On rubber we have had too many experts in Washington as we have had too many experts on lots of other things in Washington."

Thus far the insistence of army and navy officials that nothing shall be permitted to interfere with production of escort vessels to guard the nation's far-flung convoys has prevented any final decision on Jeffers' demands that the synthetic rubber program be given an immediate "go-ahead."

Green Light Blocked

Ten days ago WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson was reported to have decided to grant Jeffers a "green light" on 55 percent of the synthetic rubber program, but strong protests from the army and navy have blocked any action.

Military officials have carried their appeal to Economic Czar James F. Byrnes, but the latter is reported to have found himself unable to settle the dispute and will turn it over to the court of last appeal—President Roosevelt.

Jeffers has received high priority ratings and the right to obtain these critical components for 20 percent of his program. He has refused to alter his stand for a larger share.

"I will insist on priorities, if I have to carry my appeal to a higher authority," he said after an appearance before a senate agriculture subcommittee, headed by Sen. Gillette (D) Iowa.

The matter already has reached that "higher authority," however, in the person of the President.

Pending a decision, the construction of synthetic rubber plants—a month behind schedule at last report—are said to be getting farther behind. The army reportedly is willing to "compromise" with Jeffers and approve a "go-ahead" on somewhere between 20 and 55 percent of the synthetic program.

Nelson has taken the position publicly that the increase can be granted to the rubber program without hindering the other vital parts of the nation's war effort, through increased production and better scheduling of the limiting components.

Even within WPB—to say nothing of the armed services—there is disagreement on this point, however. One production executive stated positively that there was "bound to be" some slowing down of the escort vessels program, if the 55 percent verdict stood.

Since the decision first was reached to grant Jeffers a "green light" on a larger part of his program, military officials have presented so strong a case in behalf of escort vessels that it has not been carried through.

AUSSIES WAIT ANXIOUSLY FOR DRIVE ON JAPAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—Sir Owen Dixon, Australian minister to America maintained today that Australia "waits with impatience the time when allied strategy and allied resources allow a major offensive against Japan."

Addressing the Australian society of New York at a dinner to mark the 155th anniversary today of the first settlement of Australia, Sir Owen said he was confident that the time is not far off when such an offensive may be undertaken.

He pointed out that his countrymen will not be satisfied simply with crushing the Japanese, adding that for the future security of the Pacific "strategic provisions against future attack in any direction from Japan will still remain indispensable."

Tripoli fell with virtually no resistance. Rommel's artillery was active Friday night and anti-tank guns and infantry did hold a road-block five miles south of Castel Benito, ten miles south of the city, for a time. But the defense was half-hearted and weak.

LOSS OF ALARM CLOCK AROUSES BURGLAR VICTIM

Loss of a $1 alarm clock has Milt Fullen, former Muhlenberg township trustee, in a dither.

Fullen, who works at the Columbus rendering plant on Frank road, told Sheriff Charles Rad-cliff that someone had broken into his house car, parked at the rendering plant, during the week end and had taken the alarm clock. "It's not a valuable one," Fullen told the sheriff, "but how am I going to get to work without it? I can't find another one."

The Darbyville resident wasn't concerned about four blankets, two of them heavy ones, and two pairs of overalls also stolen. But he was worried about the clock.

despite offers of from 12 cents to 15 cents a bushel no labor can be found.

The War Board has started to take into consideration the need for laborers during the canning season, and at the present time it has not been able to find a solution for the problem.

The board went on record Monday urging the Selective Service board to be lenient in granting deferments to farm youths who claim they are needed at home. However, the USDA board pointed out, a farm youth permitted to remain at home must do so. He is not permitted to leave the farm for more lucrative work elsewhere. If he does, his classification is changed immediately.

The board recommends additional machinery, such as power elevators, corn huskers, combines and other harvest equipment, be provided for rural folk, and it also urges that electric motors be used where possible for power in grinding, threshing, silo filling and in other tasks where the amount of manpower necessary must be cut down.

JEFFERS TURNS VERBAL GUNS ON ARMY AND NAVY

one as flat as a flounder," he said. "We can bring production up to adequate levels to permit fulfillment of all the military needs and rubber plants as well."

"On rubber we have had too many experts in Washington as we have had too many experts on lots of other things in Washington."

Thus far the insistence of army and navy officials that nothing shall be permitted to interfere with production of escort vessels to guard the nation's far-flung convoys has prevented any final decision on Jeffers' demands that the synthetic rubber program be given an immediate "go-ahead."

Green Light Blocked

Ten days ago WPB Chairman Donald M. Nelson was reported to have decided to grant Jeffers a "green light" on 55 percent of the synthetic rubber program, but strong protests from the army and navy have blocked any action.

Military officials have carried their appeal to Economic Czar James F. Byrnes, but the latter is reported to have found himself unable to settle the dispute and will turn it over to the court of last appeal—President Roosevelt.

Jeffers has received high priority ratings and the right to obtain these critical components for 20 percent of his program. He has refused to alter his stand for a larger share.

"I will insist on priorities, if I have to carry my appeal to a higher authority," he said after an appearance before a senate agriculture subcommittee, headed by Sen. Gillette (D) Iowa.

The matter already has reached that "higher authority," however, in the person of the President.

Pending a decision, the construction of synthetic rubber plants—a month behind schedule at last report—are said to be getting farther behind. The army reportedly is willing to "compromise" with Jeffers and approve a "go-ahead" on somewhere between 20 and 55 percent of the synthetic program.

Nelson has taken the position publicly that the increase can be granted to the rubber program without hindering the other vital parts of the nation's war effort, through increased production and better scheduling of the limiting components.

Even within WPB—to say nothing of the armed services—there is disagreement on this point, however. One production executive stated positively that there was "bound to be" some slowing down of the escort vessels program, if the 55 percent verdict stood.

Since the decision first was reached to grant Jeffers a "green light" on a larger part of his program, military officials have presented so strong a case in behalf of escort vessels that it has not been carried through.

AUSSIES WAIT ANXIOUSLY FOR DRIVE ON JAPAN

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—Sir Owen Dixon, Australian minister to America maintained today that Australia "waits with impatience the time when allied strategy and allied resources allow a major offensive against Japan."

Addressing the Australian society of New York at a dinner to mark the 155th anniversary today of the first settlement of Australia, Sir Owen said he was confident that the time is not far off when such an offensive may be undertaken.

He pointed out that his countrymen will not be satisfied simply with crushing the Japanese, adding that for the future security of the Pacific "strategic provisions against future attack in any direction from Japan will still remain indispensable."

LOSS OF ALARM CLOCK AROUSES BURGLAR VICTIM

Loss of a $1 alarm clock has Milt Fullen, former Muhlenberg township trustee, in a dither.

Fullen, who works at the Columbus rendering plant on Frank road, told Sheriff Charles Radcliff that someone had broken into his house car, parked at the rendering plant, during the week end and had taken the alarm clock.

"It's not a valuable one," Fullen told the sheriff, "but how am I going to get to work without it? I can't find another one."

The Darbyville resident wasn't concerned about four blankets, two of them heavy ones, and two pairs of overalls also stolen. But he was worried about the clock.

despite offers of from 12 cents to 15 cents a bushel no labor can be found.

The War Board has started to take into consideration the need for laborers during the coming season, and at the present time it has not been able to find a solution for the problem.

The board went on record Monday urging the Selective Service board to be lenient in granting deferments to farm youths who claim they are needed at home. However, the USDA board pointed out, a farm youth permitted to remain at home must do so. He is not permitted to leave the farm for more lucrative work elsewhere. If he does, his classification is changed immediately.

The board recommends additional machinery, such as power elevators, corn huskers, combines and other harvest equipment, be provided for rural folk, and it also urges that electric motors be used where possible for power in grinding, threshing, silo filling and in other tasks where the amount of manpower necessary must be cut down.

GIVEN RESIGNS AS CHIEF OF RAID WARDENS

Oil Man Turns Over Well Organized Units Of More Than 200 Workers

WILLIAMSON TAKES POST

Council Rules That Lights Remain Responsibility Of Individuals

H. B. Given, who for the last year has been serving as chief of the Air Raid Warden and Fire Watcher divisions of the Circleville Defense Council, has resigned the post due to the press of business. His resignation was accepted by the Council Monday evening, and appreciation of the defense role he has played was voiced.

Mr. Given assumed one of the most responsible positions in the Council and devoted long hours to organization of the Warden and Watcher groups. He started with nothing and turned over units composed of more than 200 men and women, doing an outstanding job during the time he held the position.

Richard Williamson, who recently has been serving as a lieutenant under Mr. Given, was appointed chief of the division and assumed the responsibility immediately.

Resignation Tendered

Mr. Given, who is head of the Given Oil Co., in tendering his resignation declared that due to the shortage of labor and because of federal regulations affecting his business, he no longer could devote the time necessary to the undertaking. "The job, in my opinion, is so important that it should be done right," he declared, "and I no longer have the time required for the position." He will remain as a member of the Council.

The Council Monday evening devoted a large part of its session to a discussion of responsibility for lights in buildings during blackouts and decided that the responsibility must rest with the building occupant. It had been suggested that arrangements be made whereby air raid wardens or fire watchers might turn out lights in stores and in show windows. The council unanimously refused to shoulder the responsibility.

Explanation Offered

In explanation, the Council announced that many of the defense workers will not be aware of an emergency until the warning siren is sounded. The alert will be only about three minutes before the actual emergency period. If the alert comes at night defense Council workers could not dress, reach their stations and put out lights in the brief span of time. The warden or fire watcher might run into an emergency on his way to extinguish lights and never reach them. Therefore, it was decided that the responsibility must remain with the individual property owner or occupant.

Local law provides fines for violation of blackout regulations. Tests of night lights that may continue to burn during blackouts are to be conducted this week at the I. W. Kinsey store and if they are successful merchants will be asked to so shield and prepare the night lights in their establishments. Regular blackout lights are being manufactured, but as yet are not available to the general public.

LACK OF SCRUB BUCKET SLOWS WORK AT SILEX

Shortage of necessary equipment is hurting Circleville's newest industry, the Silex company plant, Clinton street.

Production is being held up. The entire operation is being endangered.

The shortage—a scrub bucket. Joe Moore, employed as janitor at the plant, called Sheriff Charles Radcliff to ask him if he could borrow a scrub bucket he had seen around the county jail.

Moore said there was no scrub bucket at the factory, it was his job to do the scrubbing, and something had to be done about it. Moore said he had appeared in the store of every Circleville dealer in an effort to buy one, but that there just wasn't any available. The sheriff is not permitted to loan county equipment, so he told Moore he would try to find him one somewhere.

County Draft Board Turns Attention to February Service Call

With Pickaway county's January contingent of draftees ready to leave Wednesday for Fort Thomas, Ky., Pickaway county Selective Service office is turning its attention toward the February all-service call. The board said Tuesday that it has not been given a definite quota to fill during February, but that it is preparing for a call of any size desired.

Fifty-two youths and men will report at 11:45 a. m. Wednesday at the bus station to board a northbound bus. Reaching Columbus union depot, the group will entrain for Fort Thomas for classification and assignment. Neil A. Leist of Pickaway township is acting corporal for the group.

The board has received a tentative quota request from state headquarters, but a possibility exists that since the February contingent will cover an all-service request that the total of men needed may be boosted. The tentative quota calls for fewer than 100 men.

However, the board pointed out Tuesday that it is ready to fill a call of almost any size, adding that its list of I-A men is a large one and capable of filling a call of much greater than 100 persons.

The board indicated that the 18 and 19-year-old registrants who are in I-A may be exhausted by the February demand. In that case married men who have wives only as dependents can expect to receive notices to report for induction. So far the local board has not been forced to call up married men, except those married after registration for service or when induction was imminent.

Draft officials have been working diligently keeping its lists of registered men classified as closely as possible. At all meetings held in the last several weeks scores of classifications have been decided on and posted on the bulletin board in the courthouse lobby. While the board does not know how large its February call may be, it is prepared for any emergency.

The all-service call means that part of the group will be assigned for army training and the remainder for the navy and its varied branches. This will be the first time that draftees have ever been called up for the navy. This branch, which also includes marine corps and coast guard, always keeping its ranks filled from enlistments.

NEW SECRETARY TO BE SELECTED BY RED CROSS

Executive board of the Pickaway county Red Cross was scheduled to meet Tuesday afternoon to choose a new home service secretary to succeed Miss Agnes Butch, resigned, and to decide on new quarters for the organization to be housed.

Carl C. Leist, chapter chairman, said that numerous applications have been received for the Home Service post, a full-time job, and that several possible locations are being considered for the Red Cross headquarters.

Matters pertaining to the visit of the Red Cross blood bank mobile unit to Circleville March 15 and 16 will likely be discussed also. Registration program and location for blood donations to be made have not yet been worked out.

Many members of the Kiwanis club signed a pledge at their meeting Monday evening to contribute blood to the bank. Names of the members willing to cooperate were handed to Hal Dean, chairman of the Red Cross blood bank project.

The more a fellow is told how to make out his income taxes, the more impossible it seems.

OPA READY TO CLAMP DOWN ON AUTO SPEEDERS

Office of Price Administration indicated Tuesday that it soon will start clamping down on motorists who have been convicted in police court of exceeding the 35-mile an hour speed limit set up last Fall in an effort to protect valuable tires.

Circleville rationing office has not yet been asked to provide names of drivers who have been cited for exceeding limits, names of about 10 being on file, but such an order is expected soon since the step was taken in the capital city.

OPA told Police Inspector Thomas Scully of Columbus that gasoline ration books may be taken from speeders.

James W. Huffman, OPA attorney, said names of traffic law violators would be sent to local rationing boards for such action as is deemed necessary.

The 35-mile limit is not compulsory so far as highway travel is concerned, according to law, but it is the speed advised by the OPA and the state highway patrol. Many motorists have been cited throughout the state for driving in excess of the limitation. These motorists, when their names are certified to OPA War Price and Rationing units, will not be permitted new tires for their cars, and at the same time their gasoline rationing books are put in jeopardy.

Local rationing board is expected information momentarily which would instruct them to start enforcing the too-much-speed-nogas-or-tires decree. So far no motorists who have been certified as failing to abide by the 35-mile limit have appeared to request new or recapped tires.

"For the want of bullets..."

Out there somewhere on a scorched, deserted battlefield is a monument to an American soldier — a pile of rocks... an empty gun... an empty helmet.

He was young and strong — eager and willing to fight for his country. He did fight... bravely.

But for the want of bullets... or planes... or tanks — he lost his life. He didn't understand.

"No, Soldier... you didn't understand... you didn't know... that accidents of carelessness and inefficiency back home... cost you your life. You didn't know that since your country went to war accidents have caused the loss of 500,000,000 man-days of labor... precious days, hours and minutes... lost forever for making the bullets and building the planes and the tanks... that could have saved your life—and the lives of your comrades."

Accidents are a deadly enemy that prolong the war. Saving or losing a day, an hour, or even a minute on the production front, means life or death to those on the battle fronts.

Accidents do not happen. They are caused. They can be prevented. Because the Norfolk and Western Railway knows from long experience that these statements are the literal truth, it has wholeheartedly joined in the nationwide accident-prevention campaign of the War Production Fund to Conserve Manpower. Started by American industry, and endorsed by the War Production Board, this campaign is raising $5,000,000 from business and industry throughout the country. The funds will be used to finance a vast program of the National Safety Council — to protect America's war workers in the factory, in the home and on the streets.

Tonight, when you lie down to sleep, visualize the lonely monument of that American soldier. And solemnly resolve that tomorrow, you will go forth to work and live safely... to protect his comrades... to speed Victory and Peace.

LACK OF SCRUB BUCKET SLOWS WORK AT SILEX

Shortage of necessary equipment is hurting Circleville's newest industry, the Silex company plant, Clinton street.

Production is being held up. The entire operation is being endangered.

The shortage—a scrub bucket. Joe Moore, employed as janitor at the plant, called Sheriff Charles Radcliff to ask him if he could borrow a scrub bucket he had seen around the county jail. Moore said there was no scrub bucket at the factory, it was his job to do the scrubbing, and something had to be done about it. Moore said he had appeared in the store of every Circleville dealer in an effort to buy one, but that there just wasn't any available.

The sheriff is not permitted to loan county equipment, so he told Moore he would try to find him one somewhere.

Breckenridge, utilization specialist of the cooperative, have returned home after attending the national conference of the National Rural Electric Cooperative association held in St. Louis.

Speakers representing all sections of the country told the conference electricity enabled farmers in their areas to produce more food with fewer farm hands last year. Electricity will be an important aid in meeting 1943 food production goals in the face of the expected shortage of farm help, the delegates were told.

County Draft Board Turns Attention to February Service Call

With Pickaway county's January contingent of draftees ready to leave Wednesday for Fort Thomas, Ky., Pickaway county Selective Service office is turning its attention toward the February all-service call. The board said Tuesday that it has not been given a definite quota to fill during February, but that it is preparing for a call of any size desired.

Fifty-two youths and men will report at 11:45 a. m. Wednesday at the bus station to board a northbound bus. Reaching Columbus union depot, the group will entrain for Fort Thomas for classification and assignment. Neil A. Leist of Pickaway township is acting corporal for the group.

The board has received a tentative quota request from state headquarters, but a possibility exists that since the February contingent will cover an all-service request that the total of men needed may be boosted. The tentative quota calls for fewer than 100 men.

However, the board pointed out Tuesday that it is ready to fill a call of almost any size, adding that its list of I-A men is a large one and capable of filling a call of much greater than 100 persons.

The board indicated that the 18 and 19-year-old registrants who are in I-A may be exhausted by the February demand. In that case married men who have wives only as dependents can expect to receive notices to report for induction. So far the local board has not been forced to call married men, except those married after registration for service or when induction was imminent.

Draft officials have been working diligently keeping its lists of registered men classified as closely as possible. At all meetings held in the last several weeks scores of classifications have been decided on and posted on the bulletin board in the courthouse lobby.

While the board does not know how large its February call may be, it is prepared for any emergency.

The all-service call means that part of the group will be assigned for army training and the remainder for the navy and its varied branches. This will be the first time that draftees have ever been called up for the navy. This branch, which also includes marine corps and coast guard, always keeping its ranks filled from enlistments.

NEW SECRETARY TO BE SELECTED BY RED CROSS

Executive board of the Pickaway county Red Cross was scheduled to meet Tuesday afternoon to choose a new home service secretary to succeed Miss Agnes Butch, resigned, and to decide on new quarters for the organization to be housed.

Carl C. Leist, chapter chairman, said that numerous applications have been received for the Home Service post, a full-time job, and that several possible locations are being considered for the Red Cross headquarters.

Matters pertaining to the visit of the Red Cross blood bank mobile unit to Circleville March 15 and 16 will likely be discussed also. Registration program and location for blood donations to be made have not yet been worked out.

Many members of the Kiwanis club signed a pledge at their meeting Monday evening to contribute blood to the bank. Names of the members willing to cooperate were handed to Hal Dean, chairman of the Red Cross blood bank project.

OPA READY TO CLAMP DOWN ON AUTO SPEEDERS

Office of Price Administration indicated Tuesday that it soon will start clamping down on motorists who have been convicted in police court of exceeding the 35-mile an hour speed limit set up last Fall in an effort to protect valuable tires.

Circleville rationing office has not yet been asked to provide names of drivers who have been cited for exceeding limits, names of about 10 being on file, but such an order is expected soon since the step was taken in the capital city.

OPA told Police Inspector Thomas Scully of Columbus that gasoline ration books may be taken from speeders.

James W. Huffman, OPA attorney, said names of traffic law violators would be sent to local rationing boards for such action as is deemed necessary. The 35-mile limit is not compulsory so far as highway travel is concerned, according to law, but it is the speed advised by the OPA and the state highway patrol. Many motorists have been cited throughout the state for driving in excess of the limitation. These motorists, when their names are certified to OPA War Price and Rationing units, will not be permitted new tires for their cars, and at the same time their gasoline rationing books are put in jeopardy.

Local rationing board is expected information momentarily which would instruct them to start enforcing the too-much-speed-no-gas-or-tires decree. So far no motorists who have been certified as failing to abide by the 35-mile limit have appeared to request new or recapped tires.

"For the want of bullets..."

Out there somewhere on a scorched, deserted battlefield is a monument to an American soldier — a pile of rocks... an empty gun... an empty helmet.

He was young and strong — eager and willing to fight for his country. He did fight... bravely. But for the want of bullets... or planes... or tanks — he lost his life. He didn't understand.

"No, Soldier... you didn't understand... you didn't know... that accidents of carelessness and inefficiency back home... cost you your life. You didn't know that since your country went to war accidents have caused the loss of 500,000,000 man-days of labor... precious days, hours and minutes... lost forever for making the bullets and building the planes and the tanks... that could have saved your life—and the lives of your comrades."

Accidents are a deadly enemy that prolong the war. Saving or losing a day, an hour, or even a minute on the production front, means life or death to those on the battle fronts.

Accidents do not happen. They are caused. They can be prevented. Because the Norfolk and Western Railway knows from long experience that these statements are the literal truth, it has wholeheartedly joined in the nationwide accident-prevention campaign of the War Production Fund to Conserve Manpower. Started by American industry, and endorsed by the War Production Board, this campaign is raising $5,000,000 from business and industry throughout the country. The funds will be used to finance a vast program of the National Safety Council — to protect America's war workers in the factory, in the home and on the streets.

Tonight, when you lie down to sleep, visualize the lonely monument of that American soldier. And solemnly resolve that tomorrow, you will go forth to work and live safely... to protect his comrades... to speed Victory and Peace.

MEDICINE IN RUSSIA

WHEN Russia was first invaded she moved some of her best medical schools far to the eastward. The Kharkov Medical Institute, for instance, loaded its faculty and its draft-deferred students on freight cars and third class coaches, and moved them, with carloads of books and laboratory equipment, to Chkalov in the Urals, 1,000 miles away. Classes were resumed three days later.

The Russians have stepped up their graduation of doctors, accelerating the training and turning out 42,000 doctors in 16 months, where they had been graduating 12,000 a year. They are training many women M. D.'s.

They have also developed a class of half-trained doctors, called field men, better able to take care of the wounded on battlefields than orderlies with no training. These men are said to be one of the three great causes of the amazing life-saving that has been performed. They do the preliminary work, so that fewer cases, and those the more serious ones, are left to the fully qualified medicos. The second cause is transfusion and the third is the use of the sulfa drugs.

The Russians are losing only 1.5 percent of their wounded soldiers. That is only a little worse than our one percent of loss at Guadalcanal and better than our four percent at Pearl Harbor. Russia is said to have had 5,100,000 casualties, of which 2,000,000 men once wounded are now back on the fighting lines.

Modern medicine is working wonders, and nowhere less so than in Russia.

DOWNWARD PROGRESS

A WOMAN in Detroit said what amazed her a few months ago was the great number of foodless restaurants. She would turn in at the door of a luncheon place where she used to get a competent meal, and where beer or wine had been served, only to people who wanted a glass with meals. She would find that meals were no longer served. The drinks were still being sold, but without the silver and napery of former days. She would move on, getting hungrier and hungrier, meeting the same thing at three or four places before she found a restaurant actually serving food.

Now the doors are closed. So much liquor has gone to hoarders that not even that resource is left to keep the restaurateur going with hope of better days.

This may not seem a very important development, but it is one that puts many

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

INCOME ON VOYAGES

WASHINGTON — Congressional probers would do well to ask the War Shipping Administration for wartime figures on the profits of steamship companies. They are enormous.

For instance the West Kyska, an aged tub owned by the Waterman Steamship Company of Mobile, is valued at only $8,189. Yet between May, 1941, and June 1942, she made various trips to the Red Sea for which she was paid the not insignificant sum of $325,165 per trip. In other words the average gross income of the West Kyska was almost 4,000 percent.

Incidentally the Waterman Steamship Company appears especially favored by the Government. For forthright Controller General Lindsay Warren has found that this company, after buying five vessels from the Maritime Commission for only $596,000, later sold five other ships back to the Maritime Commission for $3,374,700.

This, however, was only part of it. The Waterman Company had a total of 12 ships, including the West Kyska, with an aggregate book value of $786,422, on which the Waterman Company received an average gross income of $3,342,669 — or about 450 percent—for individual trips to Red Sea ports, carrying supplies to the British. Of course, wartime insurance rates zoomed and seamen's wages were sky high, but even so Red Sea profits look lush.

Other Waterman ships which have cashed in heavily on voyages to this area are the following, with income per voyage: The Bienville, valued at $16,581. Income — $313,765.

The Antinous, valued at $52,272. Income — $512,384.

The Ipswich, valued at $30,847. Income — $222,442.

The Iberville, valued at $58,000. Income — $268,908.

The Lafayette, valued at $76,346. Income — $261,521.

The Gateway City, valued at $24,952. Income — $162,987.

The Jean LaFite, valued at $43,039. Income — $348,667.

The Andrew Jackson, valued at $158,493. Income — $274,815.

Note: All these ships, including the West Kyska, range from 22 to 24 years old.

small lunchrooms out of business. Their first lack was help, followed by difficulties in getting meat, having laundry and cleaning done, on down to the point of lacking liquor for the last resort. It is harder for workers to keep properly fed. And it puts additional burdens on the restaurants which are able to keep open.

Some maladjustments are inevitable for a nation suddenly changing its habits of living from a peace to a war basis. It is hoped that there will not be too many more, and the re-adjustments may soon begin.

Water Treatment for Colds Helpful But Often Neglected

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THINKING about treatments, people—and this includes doctors—are so apt to think of treatment by drugs alone that they neglect some of the most helpful methods that have been developed. I am thinking particularly of water treatment.

Water treatment includes hot drinks by mouth. It seems simple, but probably the actual benefit derived by forcing a hot glass of water once an hour is equal to the effect of aspirin.

Keeping the Body Warm

Then there is rest in bed so that sweating can take place, steam baths, mustard foot baths and any other method of warming up the surface of the body. A person with a severe cold will almost certainly not worry about the gasoline rationing or the Community Ball. He will be very glad to submit to such treatment, get into bed and stay there until the trouble is over.

The old-fashioned mustard foot bath is a standby and the directions for carrying it out should be observed to the comma. The patient should be put in front of a fire and the arms and shoulders covered with a blanket or chair. The bucket or bowl in which the feet are to be immersed is made ready.

A heaping teaspoonful of mustard is dissolved in warm, not hot, water—about half a small pitcher full. Allow the mustard to dissolve in this water before increasing the temperature; it will not dissolve in very hot or very cold water. When ready, pour the mustard solution into the bowl before the patient puts his feet in and then gradually add hotter and hotter water until the basin or bucket is filled.

Allow this soaking to go on for 15 to 20 minutes. The advantages of the mustard foot bath are partly the fire, the patient's being warmed up, the perspiration which naturally results from getting the feet hot and the fumes of the mustard solution into the nose, throat and lungs, helps to relieve the congestion and feeling of discomfort.

Another valuable water treatment procedure is the throat compress; this also has to be carried out with exact technique. It is, however, simplicity itself. It requires two strips of gauze or old handkerchiefs, linen or cotton, three inches wide and long enough to reach from one ear to the opposite ear and a flannel cloth three and one-half inches wide and long enough to go around the chin and over the top of the head.

The linen strips are wrung out of water which is 60° F. and placed on the throat from ear to ear and covered by the flannel, which is pinned over the top of the head and allowed to remain until a new one is put on. Notice that the flannel does not go around the throat, but over the top of the head.

Public health officials are constantly saying at this time of year: "Take care of a cold. Don't let it run into pneumonia." The only thing they omit is telling us how to take care of a cold and how to avoid pneumonia.

Pneumonia Scare

The scare of a cold's running into pneumonia is in my opinion grossly exaggerated. I do not believe colds ever "run into" pneumonia; reported cases to the contrary are simply an indication of a pneumonia that existed from the beginning and which was mistakenly called a cold. Furthermore, don't worry about being "threatened" with pneumonia. Nature doesn't threaten, she up and acts.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. L. W.: I am taking one capsule daily containing the essential vitamins and am also taking three or four magnesia tablets daily. Will the magnesia lessen the value of the vitamins?

Answer: No.

D. M. G.:—1. Please tell me if a slow pulse is serious. 2. What causes pus to form in the corner of the eyes? 3. Does the thyroid gland cause the heart to beat fast at times?

Answer: 1. A slow pulse is not considered abnormal unless it is below 60 beats a minute. It can be caused by a number of things, one of which is a change in a certain part of the heart muscle known as heart block. 2. Pus in the corner of the eyes is probably due to an infection of the conjunctiva. Occasionally eyestrain from badly fitted glasses will cause this. 3. An active thyroid gland usually increases the pulse rate.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

On order of Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, and Mayor W. B. Cady, president of city board of health, all children under three years of age were banned from Circleville theatres because of the measles epidemic. Action was taken after conferences with theatre managers who agreed to cooperate.

Robert Taft of Cincinnati was to address the Kiwanis club at its next meeting at Hanley's tea room. He was a candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate.

Hunter Chambers, Pickaway township, attended Farmers' Week at Ohio State university, and was to furnish music for the banquet of the Ohio Bee association at the Ohio Union on the campus.

10 YEARS AGO

Wayne Hoover, Jackson township, was reelected president of the Pickaway county board of education with C. E. Meyers of

Washington township renamed vice president.

Mrs. William Betts Jr., county chairwoman in charge of conversion of cotton goods, distributed by the Red Cross, into clothing, stated that 12,000 yards of cotton goods were converted for use of needy families in Circleville and Pickaway county.

At a meeting of the Monday club, the program, in charge of the division of architecture, included an interesting paper by Mrs. Hildeburn Jones on Commercial Buildings. It gave glimpses of unique buildings of the future.

25 YEARS AGO

London fish hatchery, the largest in the state, produced 600,000 fry in one year. Five different fish were propagated.

Miss Eva W. Dunn, Haysville, daughter of the late Mr. Ferd Dunn, and Mr. John E. Dreisbach were married January 23 at Trinity Lutheran church by the Rev. G. J. Troutman.

Where Contentment Lies

SUSAN SHERIDAN

WRITTEN FOR AND RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

SYNOPSIS
KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Kay has been very friendly with him.

DAVID BANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concern, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin, HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.

CHAPTER FOUR

JAKE HAD told Pat at dinner that he didn't want to have anything to do with Mr. Everitt, but he hadn't banked on what ideas Mr. Everitt himself might have up his sleeve. On Friday afternoon he came puffing up the stairs of Jake's apartment. Jake knew who it was, because everyone else took the stairs on the run. So he ignored the door bell's ringing, trying to pretend he wasn't there.

"Answer this bell, you young scoundrel!" roared the old man. "I know you are in; I heard the piano a block away." So Jake let him in. The old man was winded but magnificent, his back straight, his white hair thick as a boy's. Jake really liked him; he wished they could be friends on a different basis.

"Ridiculous, your living in this barn," the old man spluttered. "It suits me."

"That's because you're a lazy good-for-nothing." The words were harsh. The tone wasn't. The old man began pacing the floor. "I'm here for the last time, Jonathan," he said sadly. "I'm going to give you exactly 24 hours." He pulled out his old-fashioned gold watch. "If I haven't heard from you by 6:30 tomorrow night, the offer is off."

"I'll give you your answer now," Jake said defiantly. "You think it over, you muddled-headed young fool." Mr. Everitt walked across the floor, put his hand on Jake's shoulder and gripped it hard.

"You young people think you know all the answers, Jake." He had never called him Jake before. "They say wisdom is what you've learned when it's too late to do anything about it. You won't be young forever. It takes vitality and good nerves and a strong will to make a success of anything, particularly a career as a concert pianist."

Jake interrupted him. "I don't give a hang about a career. I've told you that. I play the piano because I like it." He hesitated a minute.

"Like" is a pretty weak word."

The old man's voice was gentle. "All right, maybe it is all that really counts in my life. But now I'm boss. If I take your offer, your money, start giving concerts, then I'm a slave to it." Jake shook the old man's arm free impatiently.

"Nobody's free, Jonathan," the old man said. He sounded tired. "Let's hope you grow up before it's too late." He picked up his hat and cane. "If you come to your senses before tomorrow night, call me here in town. I don't leave for the country until after dinner."

After he had left, Jake wondered if he really was a muddled-headed young fool. He looked around his "barn" affectionately. It was all he wanted. A concert grand piano, a comfortable day bed, some good arm chairs. He had cured the bare masculine look by making chintz curtains and slip covers. He didn't have any desire to clutter up his life with inanimate things that became a nuisance and a bother. That's what people did when they made a lot of money.

He sat down at the piano. The keys felt cool and smooth to his touch. He played a few chords and then went crashing into a Chopin polonaise. He played effortlessly, with a sense of peaceful exhilaration. He was lost in a world of his own. When he got up from the piano hours later, his mind felt clear and single tracked. If he made a serious career of this thing that he loved so deeply, it wouldn't be his any more. It would be tied up with people and trains and dinner parties and schedules. And all those outside things, bit by bit, would pull apart this thing that now was wholly his.

He slammed on his hat, dashed down the stairs and out into the night. He suddenly felt drained of thought and feeling and very hungry. He went to a diner, ordered ham and eggs, drank several cups of good hot coffee. Then he walked down to the Battery, stood watching the lights on the water. It was late and the Battery was deserted. Jake felt as though he had New York to himself. "Tomorrow, maybe, I'll be restless, crave companionship," he thought. "But right now I wouldn't change places with anyone in the world. I must remember how important this feeling of being independent and free is, especially when I see Kay."

Saturday was Kay's busiest day at the store. The sale was in full swing and the crowds tremendous. She and David had just finished a tour of all her departments, discussing the results of the sale with each buyer. Most of them were jubilant.

"The stuff from California is going well," David observed. Some of the buyers had made buying trips to the coast. With foreign markets cut off, California was rapidly becoming the source of many novel ideas.

"Maybe you'd better take a trip out there yourself this summer," David suggested.

"I'd thought of that," Kay was casual; she wasn't anxious to leave town.

"We might both go, fly out and back. A week would do it."

"Do you think we ought to be away at the same time?"

"Johnson can manage your group, can't he?" Johnson was her new assistant and extremely capable. He would have no difficulty managing without her for a week. It wouldn't be fair to him to deny it.

"Yes, he can," she admitted.

"Are you intimating that you'd prefer to go without me?" David said wryly.

"Of course not," she said quickly, smiling up at him. "It's a good idea, both for business purposes and because it would be fun. I've never been to California."

"It's a marvelous place," David was enthusiastic. "Why not let me tell you about it at dinner tonight." The crowds jostled them.

"Sorry, I've got to go to a party," She couldn't miss Tony's party for any reason.

"Some night next week, perhaps," David said, resigned.

Kay had a sudden idea. Tony never cared who came to his parties, the more the merrier. And she wasn't anxious to arrive alone with Het. Too pointed. "Are you, by any remote chance, feeling Bohemian today," she asked. "Because if you are, I'll take you along."

David's smile was immediate and warm. "Sold."

"I can't vouch for what I'm letting you in for."

"You'll be there."

Kay chose to let that remark pass. "I'll want to change, and clean up a bit. Why don't you pick me up about 7 o'clock. And don't say I didn't warn you."

Tony's parties were famous. He was gregarious, indiscriminate. He invited people at random, so you were apt to find anyone there from a bus conductor to a foreign diplomat. The drinks were strong, the atmosphere hospitable. Nobody ever went home.

It was Kay's initiation. She had met Tony and she knew all about his parties from hearsay. Over the phone Het agreed to dine with David and Kay, and assured her that Tony would welcome David.

"Heavens, don't be jittery about bringing the president of McClure's. Tony will consider him quite a haul. He's a snob in a way. He likes to have a few names scattered among the hot-polit. And speaking of hot-polit, don't forget our friend Jake is due to be there, too; that is, if he remembers to come. Sometimes he's very absent-minded."

MEDICINE IN RUSSIA

WHEN Russia was first invaded she moved some of her best medical schools far to the eastward. The Kharkov Medical Institute, for instance, loaded its faculty and its draft-deferred students on freight cars and third class coaches, and moved them, with carloads of books and laboratory equipment, to Chkalov in the Urals, 1,000 miles away. Classes were resumed three days later.

The Russians have stepped up their graduation of doctors, accelerating the training and turning out 42,000 doctors in 16 months, where they had been graduating 12,000 a year. They are training many women M. D.'s.

They have also developed a class of half-trained doctors, called field men, better able to take care of the wounded on battlefields than orderlies with no training. These men are said to be one of the three great causes of the amazing life-saving that has been performed. They do the preliminary work, so that fewer cases, and those the more serious ones, are left to the fully qualified medics. The second cause is transfusion and the third is the use of the sulfa drugs.

The Russians are losing only 1.5 percent of their wounded soldiers. That is only a little worse than our one percent of loss at Guadalcanal and better than our four percent at Pearl Harbor. Russia is said to have had 5,100,000 casualties, of which 2,000,000 men once wounded are now back on the fighting lines.

Modern medicine is working wonders, and nowhere less so than in Russia.

DOWNWARD PROGRESS

A WOMAN in Detroit said what amazed her a few months ago was the great number of foodless restaurants. She would turn in at the door of a luncheon place where she used to get a competent meal, and where beer or wine had been served, only to people who wanted a glass with meals. She would find that meals were no longer served. The drinks were still being sold, but without the silver and napery of former days. She would move on, getting hungrier and hungrier, meeting the same thing at three or four places before she found a restaurant actually serving food.

Now the doors are closed. So much liquor has gone to hoarders that not even that resource is left to keep the restaurateur going with hope of better days.

This may not seem a very important development, but it is one that puts many

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

INCOME ON VOYAGES

WASHINGTON — Congressional probbers would do well to ask the War Shipping Administration for wartime figures on the profits of steamship companies. They are enormous.

For instance the West Kyska, an aged tub owned by the Waterman Steamship Company of Mobile, is valued at only $8,139. Yet between May, 1941, and June 1942, she made various trips to the Red Sea for which she was paid the not insignificant sum of $325,165 per trip. In other words the average gross income of the West Kyska was almost 4,000 percent.

Incidentally the Waterman Steamship Company appears especially favored by the Government. For forthright Controller General Lindsay Warren has found that this company, after buying five vessels from the Maritime Commission for only $596,000, later sold five other ships back to the Maritime Commission for $3,374,700.

This, however, was only part of it. The Waterman Company had a total of 12 ships, including the West Kyska, with an aggregate book value of $786,422, on which the Waterman Company received an average gross income of $3,342,669 — or about 450 percent—for individual trips to Red Sea ports, carrying supplies to the British. Of course, wartime insurance rates zoomed and seamen's wages were sky high, but even so Red Sea profits look lush.

Other Waterman ships which have cashed in heavily on voyages to this area are the following, with income per voyage:

The Bienville, valued at $16,581. Income — $313,765.

The Antinous, valued at $52,272. Income — $312,384.

The Ipswich, valued at $30,847. Income — $222,442.

The Iberville, valued at $58,000. Income — $268,908.

The Lafayette, valued at $76,346. Income — $261,521.

The Gateway City, valued at $24,952. Income — $162,987.

The Jean LaFite, valued at $43,039. Income — $348,667.

The Andrew Jackson, valued at $158,493. Income — $274,815.

Note: All these ships, including the West Kyska, range from 22 to 24 years old.

small lunchrooms out of business. Their first lack was help, followed by difficulties in getting meat, having laundry and cleaning done, on down to the point of lacking liquor for the last resort. It is harder for workers to keep properly fed. And it puts additional burdens on the restaurants which are able to keep open.

Some maladjustments are inevitable for a nation suddenly changing its habits of living from a peace to a war basis. It is hoped that there will not be too many more, and the re-adjustments may soon begin.

Water Treatment for Colds Helpful But Often Neglected

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN THINKING about treatments, people—and this includes doctors—are so apt to think of treatment by drugs alone that they neglect some of the most helpful methods that have been developed. I am thinking particularly of water treatment.

Water treatment includes hot drinks by mouth. It seems simple, but probably the actual benefit derived by forcing a hot glass of water once an hour is equal to the effect of aspirin.

Keeping the Body Warm

Then there is rest in bed so that sweating can take place, steam baths, mustard foot baths and any other method of warming up the surface of the body. A person with a severe cold will almost certainly not worry about the gasoline rationing or the Community Ball. He will be very glad to subvert to such treatment, get into bed and stay there until the trouble is over.

The old-fashioned mustard foot bath is a standby and the directions for carrying it out should be observed to the comma. The patient should be put in front of a fire and the arms and shoulders covered with a blanket or shawl. The bucket or bowl in which the feet are to be immersed is made ready.

A heaping teaspoonful of mustard is dissolved in warm, not hot, water—about half a small pitcher full. Allow the mustard to dissolve in this water before increasing the temperature; it will not dissolve in very hot or very cold water. When ready, pour the mustard solution into the bowl before the patient puts his feet in and then gradually add hotter and hotter water until the basin or bucket is filled.

Allow this soaking to go on for 15 to 20 minutes. The advantages of the mustard foot bath are partly by the heat, the patient's being warmed up, the perspiration which naturally results from getting the feet hot and the fumes of the mustard which, breathed into the nose, throat and lungs, helps to relieve the congestion and feeling of discomfort.

Throat Compress

Another valuable water treatment procedure is the throat compress; this also has to be carried out with exact technique. It is, however, simplicity itself. It requires two strips of gauze or old handkerchiefs, linen or cotton, three inches wide and long enough to reach from one ear to the opposite ear and a flannel cloth three and one-half inches wide and long enough to go around the chin and over the top of the head.

The linen strips are wrung out of water which is 60° F. and placed on the throat from ear to ear and covered by the flannel, which is pinned over the top of the head and allowed to remain until a new one is put on. Notice that the flannel does not go around the throat, but over the top of the head.

Public health officials are constantly saying at this time of year: "Take care of a cold. Don't let it run into pneumonia." The only thing that is telling us how to take care of a cold and how to avoid pneumonia.

Pneumonia Scare

The scare of a cold's running into pneumonia is in my opinion grossly exaggerated. I do not believe colds ever "run into" pneumonia; reported cases to the contrary are simply an indication of a pneumonia that existed from the beginning and which was mistakenly called a cold. Furthermore, don't worry about being "threatened" with pneumonia. Nature doesn't threaten, she up and acts.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

M. L. W.: I am taking one capsule daily containing the essential vitamins and am also taking three or four magnesia tablets daily. Will the magnesia lessen the value of the vitamins?

Answer: No.

D. M. G.:—1. Please tell me if a slow pulse is serious. 2. What causes pus to form in the corner of the eyes? 3. Does the thyroid gland cause the heart to beat fast at times?

Answer: 1. A slow pulse is not considered abnormal unless it is below 60 beats a minute. It can be caused by a number of things, one of which is a change in a certain part of the heart muscle known as heart block. 2. Pus in the corner of the eyes is probably due to an infection of the conjunctiva. Occasionally eyestrain from badly fitted glasses will cause this. 3. An active thyroid gland usually increases the pulse rate.

Looking Back in Pickaway County

FIVE YEARS AGO

On order of Dr. A. D. Blackburn, county health commissioner, and Mayor W. B. Cady, president of city board of health, all children under three years of age were banned from Circleville theatres because of the measles epidemic. Action was taken after conferences with theatre managers who agreed to cooperate.

Robert Taft of Cincinnati was to address the Kiwanis club at its next meeting at Hanley's tea room. He was a candidate for the Republican nomination for the United States senate.

Hunter Chambers, Pickaway township, attended Farmers' Week at Ohio State university, and was to furnish music for the banquet of the Ohio Bee association at the Ohio Union on the campus.

10 YEARS AGO

Wayne Hoover, Jackson township, was reelected president of the Pickaway county board of education with C. E. Meyers of

Washington township renamed vice president.

Mrs. William Betts Jr., county chairwoman in charge of conversion of cotton goods, distributed by the Red Cross, into clothing, stated that 12,000 yards of cotton goods were converted for use of needy families in Circleville and Pickaway county.

At a meeting of the Monday club, the program, in charge of the division of architecture, included an interesting paper by Mrs. Hildeburn Jones on Commercial Buildings. It gave glimpses of unique buildings of the future.

SYNOPSIS

KAY STEVENS, personable young vice president of McClure's department store in New York, feels herself strongly attracted to JONATHAN (JAKE) KERR, talented pianist, who has refused all professional offers. Kay has been very friendly with DAVID RANNING, JR., 35-year-old president of the concert, since she first started to work there. Her best friend in the city is her cousin, HENRIETTA PAGE, who lives in Greenwich Village.

YESTERDAY: Jake tells his feminine companion that he wants to hear nothing of a Mr. Everitt, who is trying to persuade him to become a professional pianist.

CHAPTER FOUR

JAKE HAD told Pat at dinner that he didn't want to have anything to do with Mr. Everitt, but he hadn't banked on what ideas Mr. Everitt himself might have up his sleeve. On Friday afternoon he came puffing up the stairs of Jake's apartment. Jake knew who it was, because everyone else took the stairs on the run. So he ignored the door bell's ringing, trying to pretend he wasn't there.

"Answer this bell, you young scoundrel," roared the old man. "I know you are in; I heard the piano a block away." So Jake let him in. The old man was winded but magnificent, his back straight, his white hair thick as a boy's. Jake really liked him; he wished they could be friends on a different basis.

"Ridiculous, your living in this barn," the old man spluttered.

"It suits me."

"That's because you're a lazy good-for-nothing. The words were harsh. The tone wasn't. The old man began pacing the floor. "I'm here for the last time, Jonathan," he said sadly. "I'm going to give you exactly 24 hours." He pulled out his old-fashioned gold watch. "If I haven't heard from you by 6:30 tomorrow night, the offer is off."

"I'll give you your answer now," Jake said defiantly.

"You think it over, you muddle-headed young fool." Mr. Everitt walked across the floor, put his hand on Jake's shoulder and gripped it hard.

"You young people think you know all the answers, Jake." He had never called him Jake before. "They say wisdom is what you've learned when it's too late to do anything about it. You won't be young forever. It takes vitality and good nerves and a strong will to make a success of anything, particularly a career as a concert pianist."

Jake interrupted him. "I don't give a hang about a career. I've told you that. I play the piano because I like it. He hesitated a minute.

"Like" is a pretty weak word."

The old man's voice was gentle. "All right, maybe it is all that really counts in my life. But now I'm boss. If I take your offer, your money, start giving concerts, then I'm a slave to it." Jake shook the old man's arm free impatiently.

"Nobody's free, Jonathan," the old man said. He frowned tired. "Let's hope you grow up before it's too late." He picked up his hat and cane. "If you come to your senses before tomorrow night, call me here in town. I don't leave for the country until after dinner."

After he had left, Jake wondered if he really was a muddle-headed young fool. He looked around his "barn" affectionately. It was all he wanted. A concert grand piano, a comfortable day bed, some good arm chairs. He had made the bare masculine look by making chintz curtains and slip covers. He didn't have any desire to clutter up his life with inanimate things that became a nuisance and a bother. That's what people did when they made a lot of money.

He sat down at the piano. The keys felt cool and smooth to his touch. He played a few chords and then went crashing into a Chopin polonaise. He played effortlessly, with a sense of peaceful exhilaration. He was lost in a world of his own. When he got up from the piano hours later, his mind felt clear and single tracked. If he made a serious career of this thing that he loved so deeply, it wouldn't be his any more. It would be tied up with people and trains and dinner parties and schedules. And all those outside things, bit by bit, would pull apart this thing that now was wholly his.

He slammed on his hat, dashed down the stairs and out into the night. He suddenly felt drained of thought and feeling and very hungry. He went to a diner, ordered ham and eggs, drank several cups of good hot coffee. Then he walked down to the Battery, stood watching the lights on the water. It was late and the Battery was deserted. Jake felt as though he had New York to himself. "Tomorrow, maybe, I'll be restless, crave companionship," he thought, "but right now I wouldn't change places with anyone in the world. I must remember how important this feeling of being independent and free is, especially when I see Kay."

Saturday was Kay's busiest day at the store. The sale was in full swing and the crowds tremendous. She and David had just finished a tour of all her departments, discussing the results of the sale with each buyer. Most of them were jubilant.

"The stuff from California is going well," David observed. Some of the buyers had made buying trips to the coast. With foreign markets cut off, California was rapidly becoming the source of many novel ideas. "Maybe you'd better take a trip out there yourself this summer," David suggested.

"I'd thought of that," Kay was casual; she wasn't anxious to leave town.

"We might both go, fly out and back. A week would do it."

"Do you think we ought to be away at the same time?"

"Johnson can manage your group, can't he?" Johnson was her new assistant and extremely capable. He would have no difficulty managing without her for a week. It wouldn't be fair to him to deny it.

"Yes, he can," she admitted. "Are you intimating that you'd prefer to go without me?" David said wryly.

"Of course not," she said quickly, smiling up at him. "It's a good idea, both for business purposes and because it would be fun. I've never been to California."

"It's a marvelous place," David was enthusiastic. "Why don't let me tell you about it at dinner tonight." The crowds jostled them.

"Sorry, I've got to go to a party." She couldn't miss Tony's party for any reason.

"Some night next week, perhaps," David said, resigned.

Kay had a sudden idea. Tony never cared who came to his parties, the more the merrier. And she wasn't anxious to arrive alone with Het. Too pointed. "Are you, by any remote chance, feeling Bohemian today," she asked. "Because if you are, I'll take you along."

David's smile was immediate and warm. "Sold."

"I can't vouch for what I'm letting you in for."

"You'll be there."

Kay chose to let that remark pass. "I'll want to change, and clean up a bit. Why don't you pick me up about 7 o'clock. And don't say I didn't warn you."

Tony's parties were famous. He was gregarious, indiscriminate. He invited people at random, so you were apt to find anyone there from a bus conductor to a foreign diplomat. The drinks were strong, the atmosphere hospitable. Nobody ever went home.

It was Kay's initiation. She had met Tony and she knew all about his parties from hearsay. Over the phone Het agreed to dine with David and Kay, and assured her that Tony would welcome David.

"Heaven, don't be jittery about bringing the president of McClure's. Tony will consider him quite a haul. He's a snob in a way. He likes to have a few names scattered among the hot-polloi. And speaking of hot polloi, don't forget our friend Jake is due to be there, too; that is, if he remembers to come. Sometimes he's very absent-minded."

WASHINGTON—With a population exceeding a million, Washington hasn't got a city council.

It's the worst mixed-up municipal mess in the United States.

There's what is known as a congressional District of Columbia committee.

Bessie

"All right, Bessie," said the boss of the little factory which was making jackets for soldiers. "Did you want to see me about something?" The thin middle-aged woman stood up from the chair in the outer office and looked earnestly at the boss with her huge, grave gray eyes.

"It's about this ten percent pledge," she began.

"Oh, that's all right, Bessie," the boss said. "I'd be meaning to speak to you about that. We don't expect you to pledge ten percent of your pay for War Bonds like the others are doing. We know you have a hard time making ends meet since Jake died. Eleven kids, isn't it? That's quite a lot of mouths to feed. Let's see, you make $25.50 a week including overtime, don't you?"

"Yes, sir, but..."

The boss smiled.

"Don't give it another thought, Bessie. You've got your hands full now. Uncle Sam knows you haven't got a penny to spare. Don't let it worry you. We understand."

The boss turned to go back into his private office.

"But what I wanted to say was..." Bessie raised her voice and the boss looked around. "I wanted to say, would a dollar a week be too little? You see, after we get the living expenses paid, there's just about a dollar a week left. Would they be willing to accept a dollar a week?"

"They'd be more than willing," the boss said quietly. "They'd be proud."

Bessie looked relieved.

"All we have to do is scrimp a little," she said. "I'd feel just terrible if we couldn't give something."

Back in the boss's office a representative of the Treasury Department was waiting. The boss shut the door and sat down.

"I've just seen the greatest single sacrifice I know of," the boss said. "Listen, if you want to hear what American women are made of..."

(Story from an actual report in the files of the Treasury Department.)

BAU JACK AND SAMMY ANGOTT TO BE MATCHED

By Jack Mahon
NEW YORK, Jan. 26—Promoter Mike Jacobs was ready today to line up a Beau Jack-Sammy Angott fight for the benefit of the USO at Madison Square Garden in March and Willie Ketchum, manager of Allie Stolz, was hollering for justice and a chance for his charge to be dealt a square deal in the daffy, lightweight, boxing, bingo game.

Uncle Mike, happy to hear that Brother Angott had agreed to a proposal to meet Jack under terms laid down by the National Boxing association, said he was very eager to talk business with the managers of Angott and Jack.

"That fight would draw about $100,000 in the garden," said Mike, "and we could pit it on for the USO. That would fit in with Abe Greene's plan to divert a share of the proceeds to a war relief outfit."

Greene announced yesterday the NBA had proposed Angott could clear up all the confusion that has existed in the 135-pound class by agreeing to meet Jack on even financial terms within the next couple of months.

Sammy and his manager, Charlie Jones, advised President Abe yesterday that this plan was O. K. with them but asked permission for Samuel to engage in one warm-up fight. Greene replied that the availability of an open date for a Jack-Angott bout would determine whether or not the NBA granted Sam's request.

Sammy at present is taking light workouts at his Washington, Pa. home and will be ready to return to action within about two weeks. Jack is busy getting ready for his next garden appearance which will be against Fritz Zivie, Pittsburgh, February 5.

The garden is booked, at the moment until March 5 which Matchmaker Nat Rogers is holding open for a Beau Jack show. This would be a good spot for the Angott-Jack match but if either desired a later date, March 19 and 26, are available.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—The Philadelphia Athletics today were leading in the number of American league players lost to the armed forces with 20, displacing the Chicago White Sox with 19, according to a revised list.

The Chicago club was the first to lose a player to Uncle Sam when Gene Stack, a rookie, was called into the Army. Stack died last year after pitching a ball game for Fort Custer, Mich. Ted Lyons, Sox pitcher, also is the only American leaguer to join the Marines, so far as the records show.

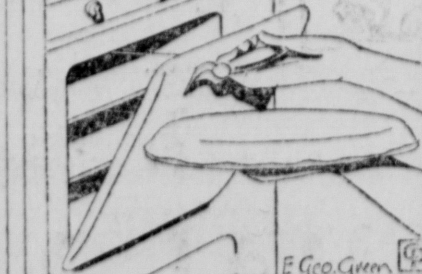

One hundred and twenty-four of the league players have gone into military service—64 into the army, 55 into the navy, two into the Canadian air force, two unaffiliated, and one, Lyons, into the Marines. Eighteen of the Detroit Tigers were listed as in military service, the Boston Red Sox and Cleveland Indians 16 each, Washington Senators 15, St. Louis Browns 12, and New York Yankees 10.

END OF TRAIL FOR POISON PAUL?

This picture was taken about a year ago. Paul Waner, long a Pittsburgh Pirate star, was working out with the Braves at Sanford, Fla. It's a different story this year. Paul has been given his unconditional release by the Braves—and no major league team will train in Florida.

New Red Ace Permitted To Train in Deep South

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—Eddie Miller has started something but the major league club-owners are going to stop it—or bust all their vocal chords trying.

The erstwhile shortstop of the Boston Braves who next season will take his artistry into the Cincinnati Reds' infield has been given permission by his new owners to do his preliminary Spring training at Lake Worth, down on the sun-kissed east coast of Florida. He won't report for workouts with the rest of the Reds until April 1. The rest of the Reds by that time will be as fine a bunch of icicles as human eye ever surveyed. They will have been freezing and de-freezing for about two weeks by that time at Bloomington, Ind.

The three New York clubs—Yankees, Giants and Dodgers—already have vetoed in advance without solicitation any such notion on the part of their players, as they prepare to head for Spring work up in the frigid zone of this vicinity, and the others around the circuit can be counted on to fall into line.

Apart From Others
Thus Miller is a baseball player apart from all others, a man to be envied and to be admired when he starts next season with a deep, health-filled tan contrasted to the anemic pallor of his contemporaries who have battled blizzards and earned their glowing health in field houses shut off from the zesty outdoors. And even if they went out-doors all they would be able to get is snow-blindness—and look at that Miller, brown as an Indian and the living picture of what a ball player should look like in April, all brown and healthy.

It wouldn't be at all surprising to learn in the middle of next Summer that a world record had been set by Miller in the matter of spunkies received from opponents. Some of them will never get over his good fortune and spend all their spare time trying to cut him down to size. That is about the only way they can get even.

Imagine one ball player out of some 400 training in Florida. As for the rest, this training in the East is going to be a noble experiment, one that will be watched to see whether trips to sunny climes are necessary to get ball players into shape. Not that it will matter. As soon as the war is over they will go back to spots far from home again for the weather and exhibition games and the publicity.

SANTA ANA, Cal., Jan. 26—

Forced into retirement from the courts by an injury to his right elbow suffered two years ago, Fred Perry, former world's amateur tennis champion, abandoned hope today he ever would be able to play again. Perry, who became an American citizen in 1940 and now is a staff sergeant directing the physical conditioning program at Santa Ana air base, said he could scarcely raise his right arm shoulder high.

END OF TRAIL FOR POISON PAUL?

This picture was taken about a year ago. Paul Waner, long a Pittsburgh Pirate star, was working out with the Braves at Sanford, Fla. It's a different story this year. Paul has been given his unconditional release by the Braves—and no major league team will train in Florida.

New Red Ace Permitted To Train in Deep South

By Lawton Carver

NEW YORK, Jan. 26—Eddie

Miller has started something but the major league club-owners are going to stop it—or bust all their vocal chords trying.

The erstwhile shortstop of the Boston Braves who next season will take his artistry into the Cincinnati Reds' infield has been given permission by his new owners to do his preliminary Spring training at Lake Worth, down on the sun-kissed east coast of Florida.

He won't report for workouts with the rest of the Reds until April 1. The rest of the Reds by that time will be as fine a bunch of ice-cold as human eye ever surveyed. They will have been freezing and de-frosting for about two weeks by that time at Bloomington, Ind.

The three New York clubs—Yankees, Giants and Dodgers—already have vetoed in advance without solicitation any such notion on the part of their players, as they prepare to head for Spring work up in the frigid zone of this vicinity, and the others around the circuit can be counted on to fall into line.

Apart From Others

Thus Miller is a baseball player apart from all others, a man to be envied and to be admired when he starts next season with a deep, health-filled tan contrasted to the anemic pallor of his contemporaries who have battled blizzards and earned their glowing health in field houses shut off from the zesty outdoors. And even if they went out-doors all they would be able to get is snow-blindness—and look at that Miller, brown as an Indian and the living picture of what a ball player should look

TIGER, BRONCHO FIVES MEET ON ASHVILLE FLOOR

It's Ashville bound Tuesday night for Circleville high cagers, who are still gunning for their first victory of the season.

Coach Roy Black's boys have been improving in their last few games, trailing Hillsboro by only three points as the last quarter started last week, and then falling by the wayside in the final canto.

The Tiger mentor is not yet certain concerning the makeup of his starting lineup. Several boys who have not had starting roles are showing some improvement and may get the nod.

Ashville has been in and out, turning in a brilliant game last Friday after a poorer one the week before. The Broncos, coached by Lawrence Fullen, have a lot of natural ability and are favored to knock off the Red and Black.

PERRY OUT OF TENNIS

SANTA ANA, Cal., Jan. 26 — Forced into retirement from the courts by an injury to his right elbow suffered two years ago, Fred Perry, former world's amateur tennis champion, abandoned hope today he ever would be able to play again. Perry, who became an American citizen in 1940 and now is a staff sergeant directing the physical conditioning program at Santa Ana air base, said he could scarcely raise his right arm shoulder high.

BIG TEN TEAMS TO LOSE STARS SOON TO ARMY

Enlisted Reserves Will Be Called Up As Soon As Quarter Closes

AT LEAST 200 ELIGIBLE

Rule Banning Freshmen May Be Eased To Guarantee Continued Sports

CHICAGO, Jan. 26—Midwest college sports faced a severe loss of manpower today as 200 varsity athletes from the Western Conference, Notre Dame, Michigan State, Marquette, Loyola and DePaul were ordered to report for active duty in the army enlisted reserve corps.

The drain on the sports personnel was expected to start almost immediately as the call goes into effect at the end of the 1943 semester or quarterly term which is coming to a close in most schools.

Wisconsin, with 20 athletes in the E. R. C., probably will be the hardest hit among the midwest schools. Included in the group are Ray Patterson, high scoring basketball center; Bob Belerle, Western Conference shotput champion; and Capt. Verdayne John, heavyweight, and Cliff Lutz, national collegiate 155-pound champion, of the boxing team.

Among the eight E. R. C. members from Northwestern are Capt. Elbert El Hirsch and three other members of the Wildcat football team.

While there still was no indication of a chance in the Western Conference's rule banning freshmen participation in varsity sports, it was considered likely that the sharp drain on manpower may force the faculty committee into a more lenient attitude.

T SPECIALIST READY TO TAKE REINS AT PITT

COLLEGE PARK, Md., Jan. 26 —Clark D. Shaughnessy, resigned football coach at Maryland university, today was preparing to take over the coaching duties at the University of Pittsburgh.

Shaughnessy, whose resignation from Maryland became effective February 1, said he closed negotiations with Pitt authorities over the week end and was awaiting formal notice of his appointment to succeed Charles Bowser as gridiron mentor there.

The popular Shaughnessy is an exponent of the famous "T" formation, and coached a Rose Bowl championship team at Stanford two years ago. He helped to coach the "T" to the Chicago Bears.

Farmers. of Pickaway County to Profit by Crop Bonus

CASH INCENTIVE SEEN AS BOOST TO PRODUCTION

Wickard Proposes Program To Increase Harvest Of Vital Crops

EXTRA PAY FOR LABOR

Secretary Of Agriculture Recognizes Increased Cost To Growers

Pickaway county farmers were given an added incentive Tuesday to grow great quantities of war-vital crops when Claude Wickard, secretary of agriculture, announced a broad program to increase production. One hundred million dollars, earmarked as "incentive" payments, was sought by the agriculture chief for farmers who exceed greatly expanded production goals.

AAA committeemen who have been awaiting a government order concerning revision of AAA provisions are expected to have all details of the new program within a few days. This information will be provided for farmers of the county the minute it is received.

Crops Listed

Wickard's war-vital crops include soybeans, peanuts, grain sorghums, dried peas, flax and sweet potatoes. All are greatly needed in the war effort to meet shortages in vegetable oils and proteins for animal feeding and human use.

A week ago local AAA officials were notified that something big was coming from the agriculture office when they were informed to halt all activity concerning the 1943 AAA program. They were told to wait for further instructions from Washington. Wickard's announcement gave the office an inkling of the type of instructions it will receive, probably before the end of this week.

Farmers who grow the above-mentioned crops in abundance will be paid an extra bonus for each acre they exceed 90 percent of their farm goals up to 110 percent of the goal. The incentive payments are part of the department's program to aid farmers produce maximum amounts of essential war goods.

Wickard's Statement

The agriculture secretary's statement concerning the revision follows:

"To obtain this additional production will mean that farmers will need more labor and materials—which naturally means that their production costs will be up.

"This additional assistance will be necessary also for farmers who have not had experience in growing these crops. The program is being offered to pay farmers for added costs in reaching the increased goals."

Congress will be asked immediately to appropriate $100,000,000 in addition to $400,000,000 already set up in the agriculture department budget for soil conservation and domestic allotment act.

Another farm product expected to receive a boost from the agriculture director is milk, production in greater amounts being urged and payments being set up to induce dairy farmers to bend all efforts to increase production.

Payments Listed

Payments announced by Wickard for the necessary farm products follow:

Soybeans, $15 an acre in excess of 90 percent of the farm goal; peanuts, $30 an acre; flax, $10 an acre; dried peas, $15 an acre; grain sorghum, $8 an acre; sweet potatoes, 50 cents a bushel on a normal yield of the acreage planted over 90 percent of the farm goal.

That soybeans are playing a major role in the war program was stressed when Wickard declared that an additional 1,500,000 acres of soybeans would be asked, boosting the goal to 12,000,000 acres this year. Peanut acreage will be boosted from 3,690,000 acres harvested last year to 5,500,000; dried peas from 665,000 acres to 725,000; sweet potatoes from 757,000 to 1,000,000 acres, and grain sorghum from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000.

Some farmland that has been used for grain may be used for other crops, Wickard said, continuing by declaring that if it came to a choice between corn and soybeans on any particular farm that he would choose soybeans.

Meanwhile, local AAA officials marked time awaiting instruction sheets from Wickard's office concerning their role in the program calling for increased production.

Whether there are more dogs in Pickaway county than last year or whether canine owners are buying their dog tags earlier than usual isn't known, but Auditor Forrest Short said Tuesday that approximately 3,100 dog licenses have been sold in his office to date. LOCKBOURNE AIR BASE OFFICERS PROBING CRASH

An army board of inquiry, assigned from the Lockbourne air base, was assigned Tuesday to the New Albany, Franklin county, area to try to find the cause of the mid-air explosion of a four-motored bomber. Eleven men were killed and the twelfth, Sergeant James H. Foldesi, 23, of Superior, Wis., was reported in critical condition in a Columbus hospital.

The injured man, dragged from the plane's wreckage by farmers who live nearby, is suffering from shock, ankle fractures, a broken left leg and burns on the face and body.

Names of none of the 11 men killed will be disclosed until next of kin has been notified.

The investigation is the second in less than a week for the army air base, the first coming last Thursday when Lieutenant Joseph Harrington of Meridian, Miss., was killed on the Heffner farm three miles east of Circleville. Result of the army board's inquiry has not been announced as yet.

Army public relations officials of Lockbourne air base said the plane, on its way there from Hendricks field, Sebring, Fla., fell early in the afternoon after bursting in air with a streak of flame that was seen by farmers living as far as a half-mile from the scene.

Prompt action of Ray Schleppl, on whose farm the plane fell, probably saved Sergeant Foldesi from death in flames that partly consumed the ship after it fell. None of the victims was reported to have burned to death, inasmuch as they were thrown clear of the ship.

B E E S DISCUSSED FOR KIWANIANS BY FRED B. ORR

Circleville Kiwanians enjoyed one of their most interesting programs in several years Monday evening when Fred B. Orr, who lives in Ross county just south of the Pickaway county line, spoke on bees. Mr. Orr, whose vocation is bees, covered the subject from many angles, providing much information of interest to members of the club.

The talk was so interesting that members of the club kept the speaker busy with questions until almost an hour after the club's usual adjournment time.

Mr. Orr was the guest of Renick W. Dunlap. The meeting was held in Hanley's tearoom.

During the evening, Herschel Hill, president of the club in 1942, presented Miss Ruth Blum, pianist, with a gift for her work during the last year.

Program next Monday is in charge of Kenneth Robbins who will have Paul Ballard, Jackson county representative in the Ohio assembly, as his guest. Mr. Ballard is chairman of the House finance committee.

The WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND

By DREW PEARSON

Governor of New York, among those present was distinguished Judge Philip McCook, who presided at a great many of the trials by which Dewey broke up New York's gang world.

Governor Dewey was stiff and unbending during the inauguration ceremony. Afterward, frank Judge McCook remarked:

"You know, Governor, I have presided at a lot of trials of yours and I've come to the conclusion that you're about the most conceited man I know."

"Maybe you're right, Judge," replied the equally frank Dewey. "I suppose it's an inferiority complex. I started out to be an opera singer and failed; I guess I've never quite gotten over it."

INDIA LEAGUE

Many people sympathize with Indian aspirations for independence or Dominion status under the British Empire. But inside fact is that a lot of Isolationists and some pro-Nazis are using the India-freedom movement as a shrewd vehicle for hitting either at the British or Roosevelt's foreign policies.

Take, for instance, the India League dinner being held tonight at the Biltmore in New York. On the executive committee of the India League and promoting the dinner is Mrs. Seth Milliken, famous member of the America First Executive Committee in New York. Another India League executive is Mrs. Budd Armstrong, a strong America Firster.

Also behind the India League dinner in New York is Sidney Hertzberg, who was public relations counsel for America First, and is now public relations counsel for the India League.

Then there is Mrs. John Gunther, divorced wife of the author of "Inside Europe," no isolationist, who was fascinated by Pandit Nehru, the Indian leader, and is still singing his praises. Another interesting Indian Leaguer is the Princess Ekstrina Obolensky, an Ohio girl, who married one of the Obolensky and who now displays the Russian imperial eagle on her stationery.

Another interesting character is Baron Frary von Blomberg, Boston contact for the League, who aroused a furor before a Long Island Rotary Club when he made some remarks interpreted as pro-Nazi.

Apparently the India League is being used as an umbrella to cover a lot of things, some of them having little to do with Indian independence.

Farmers of Pickaway County to Profit by Crop Bonus

CASH INCENTIVE SEEN AS BOOST TO PRODUCTION

Wickard Proposes Program To Increase Harvest Of Vital Crops

EXTRA PAY FOR LABOR

Secretary Of Agriculture Recognizes Increased Cost To Growers

Pickaway county farmers were given an added incentive Tuesday to grow great quantities of war-vital crops when Claude Wickard, secretary of agriculture, announced a broad program to increase production. One hundred million dollars, earmarked as "incentive" payments, was sought by the agriculture chief for farmers who exceed greatly expanded production goals.

AAA committeemen who have been awaiting a government order concerning revision of AAA provisions are expected to have all details of the new program within a few days. This information will be provided for farmers of the county the minute it is received.

Crops Listed

Wickard's war-vital crops include soybeans, peanuts, grain sorghums, dried peas, flax and sweet potatoes. All are greatly needed in the war effort to meet shortages in vegetable oils and proteins for animal feeding and human use.

A week ago local AAA officials were notified that something big was coming from the agriculture office when they were informed to halt all activity concerning the 1943 AAA program. They were told to wait for further instructions from Washington. Wickard's announcement gave the office an inkling of the type of instructions it will receive, probably before the end of this week.

Farmers who grow the above-mentioned crops in abundance will be paid an extra bonus for each acre they exceed 90 percent of their farm goals up to 110 percent of the goal. The incentive payments are part of the department's program to aid farmers produce maximum amounts of essential war goods.

Wickard's Statement

The agriculture secretary's statement concerning the revision follows:

"To obtain this additional production will mean that farmers will need more labor and materials—which naturally means that their production costs will be up. This additional assistance will be necessary also for farmers who have not had experience in growing these crops. The program is being offered to pay farmers for added costs in reaching the increased goals."

Congress will be asked immediately to appropriate $100,000,000 in addition to $400,000,000 already set up in the agriculture department budget for soil conservation and domestic allotment act. Another farm product expected to receive a boost from the agriculture director is milk, production in greater amounts being urged and payments being set up to induce dairy farmers to bend all efforts to increase production.

Payments Listed

Payments announced by Wickard for the necessary farm products follow:

Soybeans, $15 an acre in excess of 90 percent of the farm goal; peanuts, $30 an acre; flax, $10 an acre; dried peas, $15 an acre; grain sorghum, $8 an acre; sweet potatoes, 50 cents a bushel on a normal yield of the acreage planted over 90 percent of the farm goal. That soybeans are playing a major role in the war program was stressed when Wickard declared that an additional 1,500,000 acres of soybeans would be asked, boosting the goal to 12,000,000 acres this year. Peanut acreage will be boosted from 3,690,000 acres harvested last year to 5,500,000; dried peas from 665,000 acres to 725,000; sweet potatoes from 757,000 to 1,000,000 acres, and grain sorghum from 10,000,000 to 12,000,000.

Some farmland that has been used for grain may be used for other crops, Wickard said, continuing by declaring that if it came to a choice between corn and soybeans on any particular farm that he would choose soybeans.

Meanwhile, local AAA officials marked time awaiting instruction sheets from Wickard's office concerning their role in the program calling for increased production.

LOCKBOURNE AIR BASE OFFICERS PROBING CRASH

An army board of inquiry, assigned from the Lockbourne air base, was assigned Tuesday to the New Albany, Franklin county, area to try to find the cause of the mid-air explosion of a four-motored bomber. Eleven men were killed and the twelfth, Sergeant James H. Foldes, 23, of Superior, Wis., was reported in critical condition in a Columbus hospital.

The injured man, dragged from the plane's wreckage by farmers who live nearby, is suffering from shock, ankle fractures, a broken left leg and burns on the face and body.

Names of none of the 11 men killed will be disclosed until next of kin has been notified.

The investigation is the second in less than a week for the army air base, the first coming last Thursday when Lieutenant Joseph Harrington of Meridian, Miss., was killed on the Heffner farm three miles east of Circleville. Result of the army board's inquiry has not been announced as yet.

Army public relations officials of Lockbourne air base said the plane, on its way there from Hendricks field, Sebring, Fla., fell early in the afternoon after bursting in air with a streak of flame that was seen by farmers living as far as a half-mile from the scene.

Prompt action of Ray Schleppi, on whose farm the plane fell, probably saved Sergeant Foldes from death in flames that partly consumed the ship after it fell. None of the victims was reported to have been burned to death, inasmuch as they were thrown clear of the ship.

BEEES DISCUSSED FOR KIWANIANS BY FRED B. ORR

Circleville Kiwanians enjoyed one of their most interesting programs in several years Monday evening when Fred B. Orr, who lives in Ross county just south of the Pickaway county line, spoke on bees. Mr. Orr, whose vocation is bees, covered the subject from many angles, providing much information of interest to members of the club.

The talk was so interesting that members of the club kept the speaker busy with questions until almost an hour after the club's usual adjournment time.

Mr. Orr was the guest of Renick W. Dunlap. The meeting was held in Hanley's room.

During the evening, Herschel Hill, president of the club in 1942, presented Miss Ruth Blum, pianist, with a gift for her work during the last year.

Program next Monday is in charge of Kenneth Robbins who will have Paul Ballard, Jackson county representative in the Ohio assembly, as his guest. Mr. Ballard is chairman of the House finance committee.

(Continued from Page Four) Governor of New York, among those present was distinguished Judge Philip McCook, who presided at a great many of the trials by which Dewey broke up New York's gang world.

Governor Dewey was stiff and unbending during the inauguration ceremony. Afterward, frank Judge McCook remarked:

"You know, Governor, I have presided at a lot of trials of yours and I've come to the conclusion that you're about the most conceited man I know."

"Maybe you're right, Judge," replied the equally frank Dewey. "I suppose it's an inferiority complex. I started out to be an opera singer and failed; I guess I've never quite gotten over it."

INDIA LEAGUE

Many people sympathize with Indian aspirations for independence or Dominion status under the British Empire. But inside fact is that a lot of isolationists and some pro-Nazis are using the India-freedom movement as a shrewd vehicle for hitting either at the British or Roosevelt's foreign policies.

Take, for instance, the India League dinner being held tonight at the Biltmore in New York. On the executive committee of the India League and promoting the dinner is Mrs. Seth Milliken, famous member of the America First Executive Committee in New York. Another India League executive is Mrs. Budd Armstrong, a strong America Firster.

Also behind the India League dinner in New York is Sidney Hertzberg, who was public relations counsel for America First, and is now public relations counsel for the India League.

Then there is Mrs. John Gunther, divorced wife of the author of "Inside Europe," no isolationist, who was fascinated by Pandit Nehru, the Indian leader, and is still singing his praises. Another interesting Indian Leaguer is the Princess Ekstrina Obolensky, an Ohio girl, who married one of the Obolensky and who now displays the Russian imperial eagle on her stationery.

Another interesting character is Baron Fray von Blomberg, Boston contact for the League, who aroused a furor before a Long Island Rotary Club when he made some remarks interpreted as pro-Nazi.

Apparently the India League is being used as an umbrella to cover a lot of things, some of them having little to do with Indian independence.
